

Family Law

Content

Family Law is a fundamental part of society. From an economic perspective, many couples decide to organize their financial assets prior to getting married, and it is also increasingly recurrent to organize their assets and their distribution before death, known as succession planning.

We seek to support our clients in the following:

-  Study, advisability analysis and preparation of marriage agreements.
-  Preparation of wills.
-  Structuring of succession planning.
-  Support in anticipated or in life successions.
-  Support and advice in divorce proceedings and liquidation of conjugal or de facto partnerships.
-  Support and advice in succession processes.
-  Structuring and negotiation of alimony and custody agreements.

Questions

-  We address your concerns regarding the financial implications prior to marriage, marriage agreements or wills.
-  We accompany and advise you in your divorce by mutual consent or litigation.
-  We provide guidance on any issues that may arise with your partner when liquidating the conjugal partnership and/or when agreeing a visitation schedule for your children.
-  How to organize your assets and their distribution prior to your death, for adequate financial planning.